These goods are manufactured only by Mahony Bros., in Blarney, near Cork, Ireland, and are the most celebrated of all the British woolens. The manufacturers allow them to be sold by only one firm in any town of ordinary size and then only upon the purchase of a large quantity.

GEORGE R. JACKSON

is the only tailor west of Winnipeg whose trade enables him to control these splendid goods, but the quantity he has had to buy of necessity makes his stock the largest in the province. The season being well advanced, and piles of stock yet on hand, he has decided to sell for 30 days the splendid goods at prices which will compare with those who are selling Canadian goods. Nothing is said re workmanship, as this establishment is known to be far in advance of all competitors west of what is known as the Far East. See show windows.

LOOKS LIKE CLEVELAND.

The Ex-President Likely to be Nominated on the First Ballot in Chicago.

His Enemies Find Themselves Quite Unable to Unite on any Opposing Candidate.

Opening Proceedings of the Convention—Sympathy with Mr. Blaine.

CHICAGO, June 21.—The convention hall is about half filled. Chairman Brice is in his seat; suddenly it grows very dark and then rain begins falling hard. There is lightning, and some of the water drops on the crowd. The band begins to play. Prominent in the Ohio delegation is Congressman Tom L. Johnson, the single tax advocate, and a supporter of Cleveland.

12:20 p.m.—Mayor Grant, Richard Crocker, Wm. F. Sheehan, Delancy Nicol, managers of the New York delegation, are in their seats. The sun breaks out and there is a cheer. Much confusion in the hall.

12:29 p.m.—Chairman Brice is flying about the platform arranging the programme for to-day. There is still much confusion on the floor. Harry New, fresh from his laurels at Minneapolis, is here in his capacity as a newspaper man.

12:35 p.m.—There's the first outburst of applause for Don. Dickinson, as he heads the Michigan delegation and they take their seats. The band starts again; delegates are in the aisles discussing the situation.

12:42 p.m.—Gov. Campbell enters the hall and is cheered vigorously. The chairman raps for order and says "I have the pleasure of introducing Rev. John Rouss, who will open the proceedings with prayer." The invocation concluded with the Lord's Prayer.

12:50 p.m.—Chairman Brice says the secretary will read the names of the temporary officers. The temporary chairman is Hon. W. Owen, of Kentucky. The temporary officers are elected unanimously.

12:52 p.m.—Cheers as Mr. Brice sounds the gavel and Mr. Owens takes the platform. Chairman Owen begins by saying that two great dangers face the Democratic party. One is external and the other internal. The first is the organized capital of the country, as represented by the Government, and the second is the fondness of the Democrats to have issues among themselves. Chairman Owen is apparently about 45 years of age. He wears a black cutaway with grey trousers His impression so far is very good. His periods are frequently applauded. As he proceeds he grows eloquent in his reference to the defeat of Blaine and the nomination of Harrison at Minneapolis by the bread and butter brigade.

1:03 p.m.—Mr. White, of California, offers a resolution. General Bragg, of Winconsin, moves an amendment, which calls for each state to name its members for the credentials, resolution and organization committees. A number of resolutions are introduced, all unimportant.

1:12 p.m.—The roll call is proceeding slowly. The desk bears the inscription "Cleveland and Hendricks were nominated over this desk July 11th, 1884.

1:46 p.m.—English, of Indiana, offers a resolution admitting all ex-union soldiers to the unoccupied seats in the gallery. A wonderful scene occurred as a delegate from Illinois introduced a resolution expressing sympathy with James G. Blaine in the loss of his son, Emmons Blaine. The name of Blaine was wildly cheered and the resolution was carried with a will. E. C. Sewell, of Maine, spoke for the state of Maine, thanking the convention for its expression of feeling with Maine's son.

1:56 p.m.—A communication is read inviting the delegates to visit the World's Fair grounds. The convention adjourned until 11 o'clock to-morrow.

It looks as if the contest here was to be the old Minneapolis battle over again. There it was Harrison against the field, and here it is Cleveland against the country, with the ex-President so far in the lead that it looks now as if no power could prevent his nomination. Men who came here with knives in their boots to stab Cleveland and beat him at all odds, have been unable thus far to unite in their opposition, and the chances are that no combination will be effected between now and the time for the first ballot. Two men upon whom the anti-Cleveland men have relied have refused to have anything to do with the fight which is being made, and are standing loyal in their adherence to the "Stuffed Prophet." They are Senator Gorman of Maryland, and ex-Governor Campbell of Ohio.

NEW YORK, June 21.—The World prints the following from Chicago:—"I have not been on the ground 24 hours, but what I have heard and seen convinces me that Grover Cleveland will be nominated. I am not a candidate against Mr. Cleveland, and I came here for the purpose of impressing that fact on my Illinois friends. My sympathies are with Mr. Cleveland, and so far as I have any influence it will be used in support of his candidacy. Under a fair interpretation of the instructions the vote of Illinois will go as a unit to Mr. Cleveland. (Signed) JNO. M. PALMER."

CHICAGO, Ill., June 21.—Long before the time appointed for calling the convention to order the hall was packed with a surging mass of people. It was estimated there were fully 16,000 in the building. The hall was scarcely completed and a number of the intended decorative effects were abandoned and others materially changed. The four-pillared arch, with towering busts of Andrew Jackson and Stephen A. Douglass, which was to surmount the chairman, was unconstructed. All the platform fittings were meagre.

The New York delegation met at 10:30 o'clock, and had a very long discussion. It was announced that Hill's chances have ceased to exist and a statement was made that Cleveland would undoubtedly be nominated on the first ballot. In an instant Croker was on his feet advocating seconding the nomination of Cleveland. Murphy, however, backed by Sheehan and Ridgeway, said it would be unworthy of the state at this time to drop its candidate. A lively tilt ensued. Gilroy insisted that the attitude of Tammany was being ridiculed. Tammany was for the Democratic nominee, and Hill's chances having faded, it should be on the winning side. Murphy argued that every convention had specially instructed delegates for Hill, and it was their duty to do so. The views of Murphy were sustained at the delegation meeting, but it is alleged another meeting will be held to-night, at which the decision may be reversed and Tammany may support Cleveland.

NEW YORK, June 21.—There was a meeting of the Democratic Club last night at the club house, No. 617 Fifth avenue, and action was taken which may not delight the hearts of the Hill boomers at Chicago. The president of the club, J. H. V. Arnold, president of the board of aldermen, was in the chair. Resolutions were passed offering the belief of the club that Grover Cleveland was the one candidate before the convention who could be relied upon to carry the State of New York, and asking the delegation from this state to support Mr. Cleveland. There was a lively debate, but it was made apparent from Chicago advices that Mr. Cleveland was likely to be nominated on the first ballot, and the resolutions went through with almost no opposition. A copy was telegraphed to Ed. Murphy, jr., in Chicago.

Grover is Anxious.

BUZZARD'S BAY, June 20.—Ex-President Cleveland has completed arrangements for a special wire to be run from the telegraph office to his house, Grey Gables, a distance of four miles. This wire will connect directly with the Wigwam in Chicago. A first-class operator will be at this end of the wire, and Cleveland will keep posted on all that is going on. The fact that Cleveland has had a telegraph instrument put into his house indicates a deeper interest in the result of the balloting than he is willing to admit. The impression made by his conversation is that he is not anxious as to the outcome of the convention. He says he has gone into this contest at the solicitation of sincere friends and patriotic Democrats throughout the country, and that nothing could induce him to turn aside except a discharge from those friends.

CHICAGO, June 20.—The sub-committee of the national committee agreed to recommend W. C. Owen, of Kentucky, to the committee for temporary chairman of the convention.

Officially Notified.

WHITE PLAINS, N.J., June 21.—The committee of the National Republican Convention to notify Hon. Whitelaw Reid of his nomination as Vice-President, left Grand Central Station, New York, this morning in parlor cars attached to the 10:30 train on the Harlem road for this point. On their arrival they took carriages for Ophir farm, where they were received by Mr. Reid. After an exchange of greetings, Senator Dubois, of Idaho, speaking for the committee, addressed Mr. Reid, informing him of his nomination. In respouse Mr. Reid thanked the committee for the honor conferred and had confidence the party will be elected in November. Luncheon was afterwards served. The party returned to New York on the 4:35 p.m. train, in time to attend the ratification meeting in the Music Hall.

Depew's Successor.

CINCINNATI, June 21.—President M. Ingalls, of the Chesapeake and Ohio railway and the "big four," a Vanderbilt southwestern connection, has gone to New York. It is rumored that Mr. Ingalls is to discuss the presidency of the New York Central railway on the assumption that Chauncy M. Depew will go into President Harrison's cabinet. Mr. Ingalls when spoken to made no denial. Some of his railroad associates say there is more than a possibility that he will be Depew's successor.

A special meeting of the Victoria Gun Club will be held this evening.

The Victoria and Union Clubs will probably have a match on Saturday.

Fatal Wreck of a Grand Trunk Train by a Washout Near the Maine Boundary.

Disastrous Boiler Explosion on a French Cruiser---Several Men Killed.

Count Bismarck Married at Vienna---Critical Condition of Cyrus W. Field.

PORTLAND, Me., June 21.—Particulars are slowly reaching this city of an accident on the Grand Trunk at 5 a.m. yesterday, as the result of a bad washout caused by the heavy rain. Train No. 5, a local from Island Pond, Vt., to Montreal, plunged forty feet into a cut at a point about half way between Hillhurst and Coaticooke, Canada. Two cars piled on top of the engine, and the following were killed:—Markdale, of Island Pond, Vt., engineer; fireman Reid, of Island Pond; express messenger Howard Small, aged 64, of North Yarmouth, Me., and who has been in the service of the Canadian Express Company about 20 years; baggage master Curran, residence not reported; a passenger, name unknown.

Several passengers were severely, perhaps fatally, injured. The division officers of the Grand Trunk were notified, and went promptly to the scene of the accident, where they did their best to care for the injured and promote the comfort of the detained passengers. The work of transhipping passengers began at once, but was retarded by the fact that the Grand Trunk noon train took 300 pilgrims for the shrine of Ste. Anne de Beaupre from Portland, besides pilgrims from other points. The business of the road was interrupted, and passengers who should have reached Portland at 6 p.m., remained at Richmond until this morning. The washout occured in the night after the section men left. There has been a pouring rain from Saturday and the cut is fully five hundred feet long and 40 deep. Supt. Stevenson left for the the scene of the accident last evening.

Accident on a French Cruiser.

BREST, France, June 21.—While the new cruiser Dupuy de Lome, 4680 tons, was trying her machinery yesterday, the end of one of the boilers was blown out. The fire room immediately filled with steam and sulphurous smoke and the electric lights went out, leaving the place in darkness. As the furnace doors were closed the engineers and stokers could not escape until the chief engineer and another man rushed down a ladder and broke open the door. A horrible sight presented itself. Men were lying on the deck, delirious from agony, writhing in convulsions, with blackened and distorted faces and blistered bodies. Some were heaped together in struggling masses, and it required considerable effort to separate them. The efforts to get the men out were difficult, as they were crazy with pain and attacked their would-be rescuers with hands, feet and teeth, in some cases inflicting severe injuries. Fifteen were dying when taken to the hospital; others will undoubtedly die. In the midst of this the quartermaster reported that he could not handle the ship, when it was found that the steering apparatus had broken down. The cruiser was perfectly helpless. Finally she was towed to her moorings.

Count Bismarck's Marriage.

VIENNA, June 21.—The marriage of Count Herbert Bismarck to Countess Weyes was celebrated at noon to-day, in the Calvinist church. Prince Bismarck was present, wearing the white uniform of the Magdeburg Cuirassiers, of which regiment he is honorary colonel. He also wore the ribbon of the Grand Cross of the order of St. Stephen, of Hungary, in compliment to the nationality of the bride. Prince Bismarck was loudly cheered both on his way to and from the church. Count Herbert, the bridegroom, wore the German uniform and looked happy and affable. The Russian Ambassador to Germany, Count Schuvaloff, acted as best man. He wore the uniform of a Russian general. His family were in the picturesque gala dress of the Hungarian nobility. Not an Austrian uniform was visible and the Austrian Court was entirely unrepresented. It is reported that Emperor Francis Joseph will give an audience to-morrow to Prince Bismarck.

Cyrus W. Field.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Cyrus W. Field, emaciated almost to a skeleton and suffering from extreme nervous prostration, lies in a critical condition at his summer home near Irvington, on the Hudson. The aged financier's vitality was so low on Saturday night that his death was momentarily anticipated. Dr. Content, of Tarrytown, remained with him until Sunday morning, when a marked improvement took place in the venerable sufferer's condition. He regained strength rapidly yesterday afternoon and was taken for a short drive. Mr. Field now weighs only 85 pounds. His nervous system is shattered and the physicians in attendance say his death at any moment would not surprise them.

A Robber Suicides.

GUILFORD, Conn., June 21.—Alfred Watts walked into the house of Miss Lidia Chittenden yesterday in broad daylight and demanded her money. Miss Chittenden is 65 years of age and lives alone in the centre of the town. She told Watts she had no money. He struck her a blow, knocked her down and tried to shoot her, but his revolver missed fire. Her screams aroused the neighbors, who rushed after Watts. When he saw his pursuers overtaking him, he threatened to shoot and they returned to town. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon Watts called at the house of Frederick Butler, at Leet's Island, for a drink of water. Mr. Butler had heard about Watts' assault on Miss Chittenden and commanded him to halt. Watts started on a run, and Butler gave chase and was joined by Wm. Leet. Watts saw they were gaining on him, and fearing capture placed a pistol to his own head and fired. He dropped and lived but one hour.

Ottawa News.

OTTAWA, June 21.—At a meeting of the agricultural committee to-day, Deputy Minister Lowe read a statement from Mr. Johnson, Dominion statistician, to the effect that the number of foreign born population in Canada was 645,705.

While the railway committee was in progress to-day, Mr. Carpenter asked that another meeting be called at once, as it was likely the House would be prorogued in a week.

In committee on the redistribution bill yesterday all the claims relating to Ontario were passed. Sir John Thompson dropped his proposals to gerrymander Clarence township out of Russell into Prescott, and also the scheme to make London safe for Hon. John Carling. These two concessions were forced from the Government by the determined attitude of the Opposition. The Conservatives of Lincoln were given a small sop by Merritton being left in that constituency instead of being transferred to Welland. Another important change was made by dividing West Toronto into two along Bathurst street; it was it first proposed to have the whole division return two members collectively. All other amendments proposed by the Liberals were voted down.

Endorsed the Salvation Army.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Rev. Dr. Chas. A. Briggs, Rev. Lyman Abbott, pastor of Plymouth church, Brooklyn, Rev. Dr. B. F. Deiest, of the church of St. John the Divine, and Rev. Henry Wilson, formerly Dr. Rainsford's assistant at St. George's church, as well as Mr. and Mrs. Briggs, have taken an action, the announcement of which will undoubtedly be a great surprise to many of the more orthodox church members. They have enrolled themselves in the auxiliary league of the Salvation Army, and by this action have signified their approval of the objects of that organization.

THE DISAPPEARANCE OF BULL.

Not the Slighest Bit of Evidence so far Obtained to Give the Police a Clue.

Supt. Hussey returned last evening from the mainland, where he has been endeavoring to obtain a clue to the Bull family murder. Mr. Hussey says the case was a very unsatisfactory one to work on as there was not the least bit of evidence. The body of a woman was found, it is true, but it is not certain whether it is the body of Mrs. Bull, as alleged. If Bull's body could be found then there would be something to start work on, but at present the case is a mystery. Some think that Bull might have done away with his family and then gone off in the mountains and killed himself. This theory is strengthened by the fact that Bull's rifle, a pair of shoes and moccasions, a cap and other clothing were missing from the cabin.

Bull was a very popular Indian, so that clears the Indians, while the fact that he is not supposed to have had any money makes it very unlikely that he was killed by anyone else.

The case is one that cannot be rushed, but the officers will not rest until they find out where Bull and his family are.

REV. DR. CAMPBELL.

The New Minister of the First Presbyterian Church Arrives From the East.

Rev. John Campbell, M.A., Ph.D., who accepted the call to the First Presbyterian church in this city, arrived from the east last night and will be inducted to-morrow evening at a special meeting of the synod. After the induction, Dr. Campbell will be welcomed by the young people of the church.

Dr. Campbell was born in Argyleshire, Scotland, in 1845. His father was a relative of Sir James Brown, Edinburgh, and Sir Colin Campbell, whose name became immortalized by his bravery at the Relief of Lucknow and by the "Thin Red Line" of Highlanders at Balaklava. His mother was Margaret Anderson, a relative of Sir John Dick, of Glasgow. His parents came to Canada about the year 1851, and settled in Nottawasaga. Dr. Campbell was educated at Stayner public school, Toronto Collegiate Institute, University of Toronto and Knox College. He received the degree of B.A. at the University of Toronto in 1873; M. A. in 1883, and graduated in theology in Knox College in 1874. He took a post graduate course of four years at Bloomington University, obtaining the degree of Ph. D. in 1885. He was ordained and inducted into the Presbyterian Church at Cannington, Ont., 1874. In 1878 he accepted a call to Knox Church, Harriston, and remained there until 1886, when he accepted a call to Collingwood. He declined a number of calls from the United States and Canada.

In speaking of the doctor the Collingwood Enterprise says: "As a preacher he is eloquent, clear, logical, evangelical and impressive, and as a pastor endears himself to his people by his strong social qualities. He has been most successful as a minister of the gospel, been faithful, conscientious and energetic, filling every church of which he has had charge to its utmost capacity. The roll of his Sabbath school at Collingwood numbers over six hundred. He has been moderator of three different Presbyteries, a member of the General Assembly, the Home Mission Commitee and Sabbath Observance Committee. He is a member of the A.F. & A.M., A.O.U.W. and St. Andrew's Society."

CANAL DISCRIMINATION.

The President Sends a Message to Congress Dealing With the Subject.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The president to-day sent to the senate a message in reply to a resolution of that body asking for information relative to the confab recently held between representatives of the United States and those of the Dominion of Canada and the British Government, as to an arrangement for reciprocity in trade between Canada and the United States. The president in his message quotes from the report of ex-Secretary Blaine the conclusion of the Canadian commissioners that "it seemed impossible for the Canadian Government to extend to American goods preferential treatment over those of other countries. As Canada was part of the British empire they did not consider it competent for the Dominion Government to enter into any commercial agreement with the United States from the benefits of which Great Britain and its colonies should be excluded." On this point the President says that "this statement places an inseparable barrier on the attainment of the beneficial reciprocal trade which might otherwise be developed between the United States and Canada." The message then refers to the differences respecting the discrimination by Canada of 18 cents per ton on wheat carried through to Montreal, and shipped from there to Europe. It was understood that the Canadian commissioners would see to the withdrawal of this discrimination. From the report of Mr. John W. Foster, who was with Secretary Blaine at the "confab" with the Canadian commissioners, it was shown that the commissioners declare this statement does not conform to their understanding, and that the only assurance they had intended to give was that the complaint of the United States government should be taken into consideration by the Canadian ministry on their return to Ottawa. Both Mr. Blaine and Mr. Foster understood that the Canadian Commissioners would rescind the discriminating canal rates. Instead of such discrimination being rescinded, the President says in his message that upon the return of the commissioners from Washington, on April 4th, the Canadian Ministry reissued without any communication with this Government the order continuing the discrimination by which a rebate of 18 cents a ton is allowed upon grain going to Montreal, but not to American ports, and refusing this rebate, even if the grain going to Montreal is transhipped at an American port. The President, in concluding, says: "That these orders as to canal tolls and rebates are in direct violation of article 27 of the treaty of 1871 seems to be clear. It is wholly evasive to say that there is no discrimination between Canadian and American vessels; that the rebate is allowed to both, without favor, upon grain carried through to Montreal or transhipped at a Canadian port to Montreal. The treaty runs: 'To secure to citizens of the United States the use of the Welland, St. Lawrence and other canals in the Dominion, on terms of equality with the inhabitants of the Dominion.' It was intended to give to consumers in the United States, to our people engaged in railway transportation, and to those exporting from our ports, equal terms in passing merchandise, absolute equality. This treatment was the consideration for concessions on the part of this government made in the same article of the treaty, and which have been faithfully kept. It is a matter of regret that the Canadian Government has not responded promptly to our request for removal of these discriminating tolls. The papers submitted show how serious the loss inflicted is upon our lake vessels and upon some of our ports. In view of the fact that the Canadian commissioners still contest with us the claim that these tolls are discriminations, and that they constitute a violation of the letter or spirit of article 27 of the treaty, it would seem appropriate that Congress, if the view held by the Executive is approved, should with deliberation, and yet with promptness, take such steps as may be necessary to secure the just rights of our citizens."

EDMONTON AROUSED.

An Attempt to Change the Location of the Land Office Resisted Vi et Armis.

EDMONTON, Alberta, June 20.—The people in this district are excited over the proposed removal of the Dominion Government land and timber offices from the old town, on the north side of the river, to the new townsite started by the Calgary-Edmonton Railway Company, on the south side. The citizens claim that the Government has repeatedly promised, and did so as recently as June 16th, that the new buildings for these offices would be erected on the north side of the river, and that an amount for the same had been included in the estimates.

Notwithstanding all this, however, Thomas Anderson, the land and timber agent here, acting on instructions from J. M. Gordon, the acting commissioner of lands, Winnipeg, proceeded on Saturday to remove the books and effects to the south side of the river. The residents of the town arose en masse, and stopped the proceedings by disabling the vehicles, leaving the furniture standing in the wagons in the street, guarded by a number of citizens.

The town council at once opened communication with the Ottawa authorities on the subject. An indignation meeting was held in the evening and resolutions were passed affirming that the removal of these offices was contrary to the wishes and detrimental to the best interests of the residents of the district, and requesting that the government offices remain where they have been. They also demanded that Thos. Anderson, the land and timber agent here, be removed from the offices, because it is alleged that he, for personal and pecuniary reasons, interested himself in the securing of the removal of the offices from the town.

Pending the receipt of a reply to these resolutions from Ottawa, it was resolved that the citizens of Edmonton and vicinity be a committee, with power to add to their number, to prohibit the further removal of these offices from the town. These resolutions were wired to Premier Abbott. After the meeting Agent Anderson was burned in effigy in front of his residence here. These scenes were repeated on Sunday at St. Albert, where 250 French halfbreeds now hold themselves ready, at an hour's notice, to start for Edmonton and resist the removal of these offices to the south side of the river. The people are quiet, but very much agitated and determined.

If a further effort be made to remove the offices there is sure to be bloodshed. All is expectancy, and a reply from Ottawa is anxiously awaited. The people have a firm belief that the Government will not move the offices away in the face of all the promises made to erect the new buildings on the north side this summer, and this latest move is believed to be a scheme on the part of the proprietors of the townsite on the south side, of whom Agent Anderson is one of the principals, to steal a march on the citizens and mislead the Government. It is claimed by those interested in the removal that it is only a temporary arrangement, but the people won't listen to it.

OTTAWA, June 20.—The Interior Department say the row at Edmonton is the outcome of jealousy between the old town and the new one. The land office was temporarily located in the old town for the convenience of incoming settlers. The Mounted Police were instructed to assist in the transfer of the books.

Cholera on a Ship.

LONDON, June 20.—The Calcutta correspondent of the Times calls for a searching enquiry into the case of the British ship Crofton Hall, Captain Licens, which sailed from Calcutta June 3 for Hull. The correspondent says that after the ship was out ten days, she returned with nearly all her crew of twenty-nine men dead, or in a dangerous condition. During the time she had been at sea six deaths from cholera had occurred on board and eighteen men were stricken with the malady. It is alleged the outbreak of the disease was due to men eating bad salt meat.

The Globe's London cable says: "As the result of the visit of Premier Fielding of Nova Scotia, tenders were invited to-day for £20,000 sterling of the 3½ per cent. loan at a minimum price of 91½."

Guy Simpson, teller of the Montreal city branch of the Bank of Commerce, and one of the most promising of Montreal's young men, was drowned on Saturday night by the upsetting of a canoe. A lady who was with him was saved by a 14-year old boy.

A boy about 12 years old was found yesterday by Island Constable Ward on the breakwater on the island at Toronto, nearly drowned by the water washing over him. He was gagged so that he could not call for help. He had been driven crazy by the terrible strain on his mind, and would not give his name. The case so far is a mystery.

The suit of Mayor Thomas, of Truro, against twenty-one members of the Nova Scotia Legislative Assembly for $50,000 damages for having been illegally committed to jail for contempt of the assembly, has resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff. The jury awarded him $200 damages. The legislature will appeal to the Supreme Court.

The family of Lieut. Stairs have strong grounds for the belief that the rumored death of the famous explorer is not true. They have made a thorough inquiry, and can get no verification of the report. What strengthens their belief that the young hero is still alive is that no information of his death had been received at Brussels, where it would be sent.

Francis A. McKeown was arrested at Winnipeg for fraud. He pretended to be an agent for Gilmore's band and had secured transportation for himself and wife from Vancouver to Winnipeg on the strength of an agreement to bring Gilmore's band over the Canadian Pacific Railroad from Seattle to New York. He will be brought back to Vancouver for trial.

Chief Clark, of the Manitoba Provincial Police force, returned to Winnipeg from Calgary on Saturday night, having in custody a man named Embree, who had been a C P R agent at Boissevain, but who left that place some time ago, several hundred dollars short in his accounts. He was captured by the chief on a ranch near Calgary, where he had been working since his departure from Boissevain.

Besides the taxation already announced a bill will be introduced into the Quebec Legislative Assembly imposing a tax of two and a half cents on the salaries of cabinet ministers and all members of the civil service; also a per capita tax on the incomes of professional men of six per cent in country places. Mr. Hall, provincial treasurer, has also introduced a bill levying a tax of one and a half per cent. on all transfers of real estate, and a succession duty of from one to ten per cent. on movables and immovables. The new scheme of taxation is not received with general favor.

Miss Lettie Huntley

Is the sister of Mr. W. S. Huntley of Cortland, N. Y., a well known carpenter and builder. Her frank statement below gives only the absolute truth concerning her illness and marvelous recovery by the aid of Hood's Sarsaparilla. She says:

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Dear Sir: Twelve years ago I began to have hemorrhages and four years ago became so low that the physicians told me

There Was No Hope

and I should soon die. I could not be moved from my bed. Under my face were napkins continually reddened with blood from my mouth. I could eat nothing and had no action of the bowels for a week. The doctors said the cause was ulcers in the stomach. At this time my mother said she wanted to make one more trial, and asked if I would take Hood's Sarsaparilla. I told her it would be

but finding it would comfort her, I began taking it. In a few days the bloating began to subside, I seemed to feel a little stronger, but thought it only fancy. I was so weak I could only take ten drops of Sarsaparilla at first. In two weeks I was able to sit up a few minutes every day. In a month I could walk across the room. One day I asked what they were to have for dinner, and said I wanted something hearty. My mother was so happy she cried. It was the

First Time I had Felt Hungry for Two Years

I kept on with Hood's Sarsaparilla and in six months was as well as ever in my life. It is now four years since I recovered, and I have not had a day's sickness since, nor any hemorrhage. If ever a human being thanked the good Lord on bended knees it was I. I know that Hood's Sarsaparilla, and that alone, unquestionably Saved my Life."

Messrs. Sager & Jennings, the well known druggists of Cortland, say that Miss Huntley "is a highly respected lady; her statement of what

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Has done for her is worthy the highest confidence." Hood's Pills cure Liver Ills.

THE TURF

RULED OFF THE TRACK.

NEW YORK, June 21—The racing board of control yesterday, after an investigation of the recent running of India Rubber at Morris park, passed a resolution revoking the license of A. F. Vanness as a trainer. This practically rules him from the turf and puts him in a bad place, as he is already an outlaw from the trotting turf. The running of the horse India Rubber was so fraudulent that the board could not overlook it, and they have imposed a penalty which sends India Rubber and Morselio to some outlaw track like Guttenburg. It also removes from Field Taral all suspicion of complicity in the fraud, which was practically charged to Vanness. What will become of that good colt Morselio is now a question among horsemen. This colt is one of the best, if not the best, of the two year old's of the year, and has never been run in Vanness's name, though it is understood that he belongs to Wm. M. Singerly of Philadelphia record. He can't race in Mr. Singerly's name, as he is an outlaw on board of control tracks because he runs horses at Gloucester. The colt may possibly be now taken down to Gloucester with India Rubber, where they can be pulled and hauled and win or lose races as Vanness sees fit.

THE OAR.

RECOGNITION OF MERIT.

The gentlemen's fours which lost the trial race which decided the crew to meet the naval officers in the navy versus civilians race is about to disband. In recognition of the splendid services done them by Mr. J. H. Seeley, their trainer, to whose indefatigable and patient coaching they owe much of their good form and excellent style, they have presented him with a magnificent gold horse-shoe pin set in diamonds and rubies. Messrs. Gregory, Haynes, Fisher and Pemberton, who composed the crew, are among the finest oarsmen in the city, and it is a great pity to see a crew which was undoubtedly the fastest in the province in that class of boat separating, perhaps permanently.

BASEBALL.

FIREMEN AND PRINTS.

The firemen have accepted the Colonist men's declination to play lacrosse, and have accepted their challenge to play baseball. To-day they were out in the yard practicing grapevine curves and arranging battery signs. The team has been chosen as follows: W. T. Deasy, pitcher; W. P. Smith, catcher; C. Palmer, 1st base; T. Ledingham, 2nd base; F. Watson, 3rd base; G. Moss, shortstop; F. Hinds, left field; T. Watson, centre field; Pettengrew, right field.

YACHTING.

A DOUBLE REEF BREEZE.

The smart cutter yacht Ada was the only sail boat that ventured into the Straits last Sunday. There was a nice breeze from the southwest and just enough sea on to make sailing pleasant, if not exciting. Under double reefed mainsail and jib the Ada took a stretch out to the middle of the Straits and those on board enjoyed a fine run for the harbor mouth. The day was a perfect one for yachting, and there was some surprise felt by those on board that no other boats came out for a spin.

NEW OCEAN CABLES.

How the Different Nations Are Gradually Being United.

New York Paper.]

We shall pretty soon have news of the successful laying of the new British cable between Africa and Brazil, the next British cable after that between this country and the Bahamas. It is a fact that the great majority of the submarine cables in the world are in British hands, just as the greater part of the commercial steamships on the high seas of the world are in British hands. These cables are made by British ingenuity, laid by British enterprise and owned by British capitalists. They are in the Atlantic, the Pacific and the Indian oceans, as well as in the lesser seas, and they make London the telegraphic center of the world. The British submarine surveyors have recently found a practicable route for a cable between Japan and the British Canadian provinces on the Pacific coast of North America, thus preparing the way for direct telegraphic communication between this continent and the Asiatic continent. The Japanese-Canadian cable will follow in the wake of the new Japanese-Canadian line of steamships.

Africa will presently be connected with Brazilian America, and Alaska will soon be connected with Canadian America, as Europe is now connected with the United States. Looking at the lines from Europe to Asia, to Africa, to Australia, to South America and to North America, we cannot help seeing how largely they are British in their origin and in their ownership. It is the British who are the chief cable-layers of the world.

It was an American who, more than a quarter of a century ago, laid the first cable across the Atlantic ocean. We have not done our proper share of the business of cable-laying since that time. The Central and South American Telegraph Company, a New York corporation, has done good service within recent years in laying cables that now run as far south as Valparaiso in Chile; and we believe that its enterprising president, Mr. James A. Scrymser, may soon undertake several other important projects in other waters.

Reid and the Union.

NEW YORK, June 20.—At a meeting of Typographical Union No. 6 to-day, the action of the Minneapolis committee was condemned by a resolution carried by a vote of 575 to 8. Speeches were made in which Whitelaw Reid was denounced, and the following resolutions were thereupon adopted:

Whereas, It has been claimed by the public press that Typographical Union No. 6, through a committee, indorsed the nomination of Whitelaw Reid for the office of vice-president of the United States; and

Whereas, The organization has never given the Minneapolis committee power to endorse any person for political preferment, but simply authority to assure the Republican leaders in convention assembled that hostility to that party had ceased; therefore,

Be it Resolved, That while No. 6 still asserts that it has no grievance as an organization against the Republicans it cannot endorse any person for political office. We desire to have it thoroughly understood that No. 6 is an organization of printers designed solely to advance the interests of its membership, and that no individual or individuals, nor any newspaper or publication of any description whatever, has the right to speak for No. 6 unless on duly authorized credentials given under the seal of the union.

A Good Arab Husband.

When one section of the Forepaugh circus train was at Lenox Dale, Conn., one of the Arab women left the train by mistake. Her husband did not miss her until the train was a mile north of Lenox, and running at high speed. No sooner had he discovered his loss than the faithful Arab rushed to the car door and jumped from the platform. Luckily for him he alighted in a soft spot—a brook—and after picking himself up he started back to find his better half. He wore but one garment and when he reached Lenox station was half frozen. The station agent took him in, warmed and dried him, and he started onward. In the meantime his wife had been picked up by another section of the train and carried to Pittsfield. He recovered her ultimately.—New York Recorder.

A LADY'S OPINION.

Our Own Canadian People.

"Your letters and testimonials published from week to week in favor of Paine's Celery Compound, are the strongest, most convincing and best I have ever read in my experience."

These are the remarks of a Montreal lady, and there are thousands of men and women in all parts of Canada who have the same opinion. We can assert without fear of contradiction, that no other remedy ever placed before an intelligent public has received such volumes of praise and commendation. No other remedy has ever published such strong, honest and convincing letters. Another strong point worthy of notice is that all these testimonials are from our own people—our friends—our neighbors—people who are known in Canada, and who can be spoken to regarding their cures. No foreign and suspicious testimony is entertained or introduced from people with a doubtful existence.

Paine's Celery Compound is spoken of by our Canadian people in a way that reflects credit and great honor. It has been honest and trustworthy as a medicine and healer, and has been elevated to the highest fame by its wonderful workings and grand results.

Surely this is sufficient proof of its worth in all forms of disease and suffering, and should convince all that it is required if health, strength and a new life are looked for.

To Find Your Railway Car When Abroad.

Every traveler is aware of the trouble and annoyance that is often experienced on a long railway journey when, after alighting for a few minutes from one's carriage, the bell rings and the driver blows his whistle, while the bewildered traveler is frantically running up and down trying to recognize his carriage from a dozen others, all built alike and painted the same color. Here he cannot, as in England, jump into an empty compartment, for in France the practice of overfilling prevails, so that he must either find his place or lose the train. The Paris-Lyons company has adopted an ingenious device which will put an end to all this worry and also make it easier for trains to start punctually from intermediate stations.

It is due to an engineer, M. Edouard Gros, and was to be seen working for the first time last evening on the Marseilles express. M. Gros remarked that the number painted outside the carriage, often running into five figures, is the very last thing that will strike a passenger or fix itself in his memory. His device consists in placing outside the carriage an enameled plate with, as he calls it, a symbolical figure in black and white.—Paris Cor. London Telegraph.

Women Who Talk Only of Their Affairs.

As a plea for the women who can talk only of their own affairs, one may quote Dr. Johnson's words:

"Madam," he said to a woman who was complaining that women could talk of nothing at all outside of their own four walls, "why blame the woman for the only sensible thing she could do—talking of her family and her affairs? For how should a woman, who is as empty as a drum, talk upon any other subject? If you speak to her of the sun, she does not know it rises in the east; if you speak to her of the moon, she does not know it changes at the full; if you speak to her of the queen, she does not know she is the king's wife. How, then, can you blame her for talking of her family and affairs?"

THE "CONTEMPT" CASE.

Those members of the British Columbia Legislative Assembly who were foolish enough to vote with the Attorney-General in his persecution of the publishers of the Columbian will no doubt be highly interested in the outcome of the parallel Nova Scotia case. The latter, as said by the Vancouver World, was "on all fours" with the Kennedy affair, and now that a jury has given a verdict against the members of the Nova Scotia Assembly who voted to prosecute Mayor Thomas of Truro for "contempt," the gentlemen who followed a similar course here will have the lively pleasure of anticipating a like result in British Columbia. It is true that Mayor Thomas was awarded small damages—only $200 the despatches state, whereas he sued for $50,000. The amount, however, is of less importance than the principle involved, which may be broadly stated to be the liberty of the subject as against the self-sufficiency of a provincial legislature. In this province the liberty of the press is involved as well, which makes the issue all the more important. The members of the Nova Scotia Assembly have appealed to a higher court, and it is likely that a further appeal will be taken, if such is possible, by whichever party is beaten in this one. Let the result of the final appeal be what it may, the majority of the Nova Scotia Assembly are already defeated and humiliated by the jury pronouncing in favor of Mayor Thomas and against their presumption. It is difficult to imagine any sensible body of men coming to any other conclusion than that the Assembly overstretched its powers when it sentenced a man to prison for refusing to appear before it at its command. A nice state of affairs it would be if a mentally poverty-stricken collection of politicians like the majority in our Legislative Assembly were at liberty to persecute political opponents under cover of protecting their "dignity." Legislators would do well to understand that in these days a revival of the methods employed against John Wilkes is not to be thought of.

THE MEN OF ULSTER.

Some time previous to the Ulster demonstration against Home Rule the fiery Armagh M.P., Col. Saunderson, extended an invitation to Sir William Harcourt, writing as follows:

In a recent speech you referred to words I had used in Belfast to the effect that, should Home Rule be established in Ireland, "we should seek to overthrow it." Commenting on this remark of mine, you went on to say, "I should like to know who are we?" * * The object of the Ulster convention to be held on June 17th is to answer the question in a conclusive manner who "we" are. Unfortunately, the Radical papers are laying themselves out to mislead their readers, you amongst the number, as to the true character and magnitude of the meeting. It has, therefore, occurred to me that you might wish to see with your own eyes the assembly on June 17th. I therefore invite you to come over to Belfast on that occasion, when I can assure you a perfectly courteous reception, and of being afforded every opportunity of discovering for yourself whether I have exaggerated in describing those Irishmen who have determined never to submit to a Home Rule Parliament as forming a powerful section of the Irish people.

In the course of his reply Sir William said:

Nothing could be more agreeable to me than to accept an invitation, whether public or private, which would give me the advantage of your society—a pleasure equally appreciated by your opponents as by your friends. I have never witnessed a good Belfast "faction fight"—which, I believe, is about this time in season—and I am sure that under your proffered safe conduct I should find it at once an entertaining and instructive spectacle for those who, like myself, belong to the party of "Law and Order." I have, however, at present a good many engagements, and am likely to have more next month in this duller corner of the United Kingdom.

I do not know if your plan of campaign contemplates a march upon London against the Crown and the Parliament; if so, I might meet you half-way at Derby, which was the place where the Liberals of the last century encountered the "loyal and patriotic" Highlanders who disapproved of the "Act of Settlement" and resolved to resist it. I presume that might be the point where the rebel army would effect its junction with the ducal contingent from Chatsworth under the command of the Lord Lieutenant of the county. In the meanwhile I fear I must trust to the ordinary channels for information as to the mobilization of the Orange array. But I can assure you that I shall watch your strategy with interest, and try to larm myself as much as I can manage.

Of course it is easily possible at this distance from Ulster to be mistaken, and it is even possible that Sir William Harcourt may have under-estimated the force of the movement; but it strikes us that the whimsical tone of Sir William's reply very well matched the absurdity underlying the Belfast demonstration. No doubt there are a good many fanatics in Ulster who would be ready to offer an Irish parliament either an active or passive resistance in the event of one being established. It is equally certain that Col. Saunderson and his brother Orangemen have skilfully fanned the flame of fanaticism until it may look really formidable to some timid folk in England and Scotland. But with all this it is difficult to take the Ulster movement seriously or to entertain the supposition that the loud talkers would actually undertake to resist an Irish parliament created under Imperial legislation.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The printing bureau at Ottawa cost last year the sum $300,000, of which $160,000 went for wages. It is not worth that sum to the country, nor would it cost so much if it were not run on purely political principles, like the Intercolonial Railway.

Le Monde newspaper, we are told, has assigned, having apparently run too far in debt to the paper manufacturers. This was the organ of public opinion to which Sir Hector Langevin was so kind in the palmy days when Uncle Thomas was pouring the country's good money into the Conservative election fund pot. Le Monde was evidently a tender plant, and withered when once the protection of Government boodle was removed.

The Moncton, N.B., Times publishes the following paragraph, which must certainly read very strangely to any Canadian:—"At Andover on May 25, an act was perpetrated that is without precedent happily in this province. A child was sold to a band of gypsies by a grandmother with the consent of the child's mother, for a pair of pillow-shams and a few pieces of lace. The vagrants tried to get papers of adoption made out but the neighbors ordered them off.

In the United States the highest percentage of popular vote obtained by any president, since 1824, that registered for Jackson, was 55.97. The lowest was that of Lincoln in 1860, 39.91, the vote for Hayes 47.95, being next lowest. Presidents J. Q. Adams, Polk, Taylor, Buchanan and Garfield, failed to receive a majority of the popular vote. Hayes was (except J. Q. Adams, who was chosen by the House of Representatives) the only president who did not secure a majority over his principal competitor, and Tilden, the only defeated candidate who had a majority over the president elect and of all the votes cast.

The report of the British tenant farmer delegates, Messrs. McQueen and Davy, have at last been submitted to Parliament at Ottawa, and their nature readily explains the reluctance of the Government and Sir Charles Tupper to have them exposed to view. According to an Ottawa dispatch, the reports speak in very favorable terms of the agricultural capabilities and resources of the maritime provinces. They, however, came to the conclusion that free trade with the United States was desirable. McQueen goes so far as to say that he could not recommend the country to intended emigrants until such time as unrestricted reciprocity was adopted between Canada and the States. No wonder there was a quarrel between the Govenrment and the delegates.

Cardinal Gibbons wrote an article on "Patriotism and Politics" for the April number of the North American Review, in which the following passage occurred. It was not meant especially for Sir John Thompson, but could not have hit him much harder if it had been: "Let a Minister of Justice arise clothed with the panoply of authority, let him drive the impious men from the temple. Let them be declared infamous, for they are trading in our birthright. Let them be cast forth from the pale of citizenship and be treated as outlaws. I do not think the punishment too severe when we consider the enormity and far-reaching consequences of their crime. I hold that the man who undermines our elective system is only less criminal than the traitor who fights against his country with a foreign invader. The one compasses his end by fraud the other by force."

Says the Montreal Witness:—"The egg export trade seems to be weak as compared with last spring. So far this season only 1198 cases have gone over as compared with 4179 cases for the corresponding period of last year, and the prospects are anything but bright. The prices of good eggs here are as low as they have been for years past and the receipts are very heavy. Still dealers do not seem to be inclined to run the risk they did formerly. The reason given for the light shipments is that prices are low in England. The cable yesterday gave the prices at from 5s 6d to 5s 9d per long hundred, in London, or nearly 13 cents per dozen. Eggs are selling in Montreal at 10 cents and 10½ cents, and, it is stated, even lower; giving as much chance for profit as last season." A week ago Saturday eggs sold in Toronto at 10¼ to 10½ cents, while on the same day in Buffalo they brought 15½ to 16½ cents. In New York then the price for the best and freshest eggs was quoted at 16¾ to 17 cents. It seems quite evident from all this that the English market does not make up for the embargo which McKinleyism placed on the fruit of the Canadian hen.

Oil from a Whale Calmed the Sea.

A terrific storm, driving before it a huge sea like a tidal wave, struck the British steamship Dewsland on March 19th in latitude 41 degrees 15 minutes, longitude 27 degrees 20 minutes, while bound from Bilboa to Philadelphia, deep laden with Spanish iron ore. The wind blew with great fury from the northwest, and a heavy cross sea soon sprung up and broke over the vessel from all points of the compass. An effort was made to run the vessel before the wind, but without success. She would not pay off, owing to the heavy wind and sea, and a lull in the storm made it possible to put the vessel's head again to the sea. Still she labored heavily. But suddenly the waters subsided almost as quickly as they had risen, when what appeared to be a black rock was seen some distance away. As the vessel approached closer it proved to be a dead whale of immense size. The carcass was at least six feet above the surface of the water and covered with countless birds of all sizes and descriptions. A stream of sperm oil was oozing out upon the sea in all directions from the fatty derelict, which all hands believe had the effect of quelling the heavy sea. The efficacy of oil was first discovered by whalers watching the effect upon the sea near dead whales.—Philadelphia Record.

Glass Type.

The French newspapers are just now testing a novel sort of type, some made of malleable glass by a new process. The new types preserve their cleanliness almost indefinitely. They are said to wear better than those made of metal, and can be cast with a sharpness of line that will print more distinctly than is possible with the old-style type. La Patrie is now printed entirely on glass type.

True Happiness.

Happy Aborigines.

A number of Cowichan and West coast Indians were in the city disposing of furs to-day, and some of the crowd did not forget to get and dispose of liquor in exchange for their hard earned chickamen. Consequently there was considerable gaity in Siwash town, and some of the boys may show up in the police court in the morning.

Purchased a Homestead.

Yesterday Dr. H. D. Leitch completed the purchase of Mr. J. R. Kerr's handsome homestead, corner Fernwood road and Pandora avenue. The consideration was in the neighborhood of $5000. The property consists of a full-sized lot nicely cultivated and a two storey dwelling house with attics. The place is an extremely desirable one for a family residence, being conveniently situated near the tram line and in one of the healthiest spots in the city.

Full of Years.

It is only a matter of a very short time before the venerable Lord Bishop of Columbia resigns his high post. His great age and increasing infirmities, the inevitable concomitants of a long life spent in arduous endeavor, make it impossible for him to carry the grave responsibilities of his office much longer. His departure from the position which he has filled since the earliest times in this city, will make an important event in the history of Victoria.

Death of Fred Humber.

Fred S. S. Humber, second son of Alderman Humber, died at his parents' residence, Topaz avenue, at noon today, after a month's illness. The deceased was a native of Bowmanville, Ont., where he was born in 1862. He came to Victoria with his parents in 1864 and has resided here ever since, gathering around him a host of friends who will regret to hear of his demise. He was a member of the firm of Humber & Sons. A wife and a young child are left to mourn the loss of a kind and loving husband and father. The funeral will take place on Thursday at two o'clock from his father's residence Topaze Avenue and at 2:30 from the Centennial Church.

Manager Cort has another great attraction booked for the Victoria on Thursday and Friday next, June 23rd and 24th. It is "The Gossoon," in which the clever young Irish comedian, Carroll Johson will appear and charm everybody with his sweet songs and funny sayings. "The Gossoon" is a play for the people, possessing every element that goes to build up the most beautiful Irish story ever offered to the public. Everything is bright and fresh as a newly minted coin. "The Gossoon" tells an intensely human and possible story in the Emerald Isle, with an immense quantity of fun. It has music, dances and songs and a still larger amount of strong dramatic interest. The star, Carroll Johnson, is the first Irish comedian of the stage today.

CLEVER AND CHARMING.

The Talented Impersonator of "Jane" Talks Pleasantly on Various Subjects.

Miss Johnson Bennett is quite as delightful as a conversationalist as she is as an actress. Among the most charming talkers to be met with anywhere are the women who have won their way by merit to the first rank of their profession, especially if that profession be the stage. Miss Bennett is no exception to the rule, but rather a remarkable example of it. With the well-bred grace of a thorough society woman, and the quiet, unaffected composure natural with clever women, Miss Bennett submitted to an interview by a TIMES representative at the Hotel Victoria this afternoon. The conversation did not flag after the ice was fairly broken, and it soon became evident that Miss Bennett is not only thoroughly well-informed about everything pertaining to her profession, but possesses a fund of general information that shows her well-read and well-travelled, and gifted with a fine talent of description. It was a great pleasure to listen while she spoke fluently and charmingly on all sorts of interesting topics.

"Lectured the world in a somewhat romantic manner," said Miss Bennett laughingly. "I was born on board a French steamer only two days out from Havre. I was born with a caul and the captain begged it, saying he would never drown as long as he had that. Poor fellow, I suppose he went to the bottom long ago."

"There is some speculation as to your nationality, Miss Bennett, some say you are English, others that you are certainly an American."

Miss Bennett laughed archly and said, "both wrong, entirely wrong. I'm half French half Spanish; I was educated in an English seminary and have lived a long time in New York. So, you see, it would be hard to place me as to nationality, would it not?

"When did you begin your stage career Miss Bennett?"

About four years ago. Richard Mansfield discovered me. I was then playing an humble part. He said, "how would you like to play 'Jane?'"

"I don't know," I replied, "I don't know anything about it."

"Well," said he "go over and see it." We were in New York and "Jane" was running in London. That was on a Friday, and next day I was on my way to modern Babylon to see "Jane." I saw Miss Venn play it and my heart sank. The exquisite delicacy, the indescribable verve and brilliancy of that splendid comedienne I felt sure I should never, never equal, or even approach. I came back to New York. Mansfield asked me if I could play the part. "I can, but not as Miss Venn plays it," I replied.

"Never mind," he said, "you will do it famously." And so "Jane" and I have been fast friends ever since. I remind you of Rosina Vokes, do I? Well, that is a compliment. Dear Miss Vokes. What a delightful actress she is. Once I was playing a certain part and Miss Vokes sat in the front row. After the performance she sent me a letter, the sweetest and kindest I ever read. It was most encouraging to me, a young, struggling girl with all the world before her. Miss Vokes is queen of comedy.

What did you think of your reception last night?

How can I express the pleasure I felt at the kind, hearty way in which we were received. It was very sweet to us I assure you. And, do you know, I was rather timorous about how I should be received, as I have some distinct mannerisms and peculiarities, little bits of side play that are really part of myself and are only appreciated by those who enter thoroughly into the spirit of the piece. Everybody seemed to do that last evening.

Is this your first visit to Victoria, Miss Bennett?

It is, and I must say that a lovelier spot I never saw. The climate is simply superb and the scenery surpasses anything I have yet seen.

Are you likely to return to Victoria soon?

"Oh, yes, I am having a play written for me. It will be ready shortly and I expect to visit beautiful Victoria again very soon."

Miss Bennett, in response to an inquiry as to the American political situation expressed her views in a lucid and lively manner, exceedingly entertaining to listen to. Upon any topic the interviewer ventured she was ready with intelligent criticism and comment. Miss Bennett has undoubtedly a splendid future before her, having thus early attained and deserved the dignity of a star.

THE HOSPITAL BAZAAR.

Assembly Hall Assailed by the Citizens of Victoria Yesterday and To-Day.

The Bazaar Proves an Immense Success --- Last Evening's Entertainment.

The Grand charity bazaar being held at Assembly Hall in aid of the Provincial Royal Jubilee Hospital, is proving to be a grand success, and the deserving institution will be handsomely benefited by the result. The ladies have worked untiredly to bring about this state of affairs, and they must have felt gratified when they saw the crowds that streamed into the hall from 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon until the doors were closed for the night.

The crowd was immense, and it was with the greatest difficulty that the visitors managed to get around. But they did manage, as the state of the booths this morning bore evidence of. The ladies and gentlemen soon made it known that they were not there for nothing, and they were eager purchasers for the many articles offered for sale for the ladies.

The programme of fancy dances given by boys and girls, under the direction of Mrs. W. M. Chudley, was one of the big attractions of the evening. The dancers had had careful training and they went through the different evolutions like old time artists. The programme will be repeated this evening, after which the floor will be cleared and the older ladies and gentlemen given an opportunity to enjoy a few hours dancing.

The doors of the hall were thrown open again at 2 o'clock this afternoon, by which time the ladies had managed to refill their tables and make them just as attractive as they were before being assailed by the visitors yesterday afternoon and evening.

Although a large number of booths were mentioned in yesterday's issue there were, nevertheless, some that were overlooked in the hurry and excitement caused by the hustling and anxious crowd. The flower stand, the amber booth and the fancy and plain goods tables were all well patronized.

The ice cream and strawberry stand was not forgotten and the staff that had charge of it were kept busy both during the afternoon and evening. The ladies who looked after the wants of those who visited this stand were: Mesdames L. Goodacre, D. Spencer, Siddall and Durham, and Misses L. Stafford, E. Beaven, Cusack, M. Kinsman, Luney, A. and L. Spencer.

At the tea tables were Mrs. Stradthager, and Miss Twiss, while Mrs. Sylvester, Mrs. G. Simpson, and Miss L. Sylvester attended to the thirsty at a lemonade fountain.

The rose booth, a corner of the hall very prettily decorated, was presided over by Mrs. Lambert Penny and Miss Mouatt, who had many customers for their pretty stock of fancy goods.

The ladies' sewing society of St. James' church had a pretty little booth well filled with articles of fancy work. Mrs. E. C. Baker, Miss Lawson, Mrs. P. Goepel, and Mrs. Solly took turns in looking after this portion of the bazaar.

Mrs. E. E. Blackwood also had a well filled table of fancy goods which were readily disposed of by Miss S. Jackson and Miss L. Wallace.

At the fish pond were Mrs. Heathorn, Mrs. Richardson and Misses Heathorn, and in the Gypsy tent were Mrs. Bullen, Mrs. Drake, Mrs. Wolley and other ladies.

To the ladies' auxilliary is due much of the credit for the success of the bazaar. It was about four months ago that they first announced their intention of holding the bazaar, and since then they have worked hard to interest the ladies of the city in the affair. Their success is shown by the piles of fancy goods, the number of ladies present and the amount of goods that have been disposed of and that are ready to be sold to the crowd that is sure to be present this evening.

The following are the members of the auxilliary; President, Mrs. G. A. McTavish; secretary, Mrs. Chas. Hayward; treasurer, Mrs. A. J. Smith; committee, Mrs. Rudlin, Mrs. McMicking and Miss Hyams.

The dance with which the bazaar is to be brought to a close will commence about 10 o'clock.

The druggists of this city held a meeting last evening for the purpose of forming an association. It was decided to close the stores at 9 o'clock every night which meets with unanimous approval. CHAPTER X.

THE TALE OF GALAZI THE WOLF.

Now, my father, I will tell of the fate of Umslopogaas when the lion had taken him.

The lioness bounded away, and in her mouth was Umslopogaas. Once he struggled, but she bit him hard, so he lay quiet in her mouth, and looked back and saw the face of Nada as she ran from the fence of thorns, crying "Save him!" He saw her face, he heard her words, then he saw and heard little more, for the world grew dark to him, and he passed, as it were, into a deep sleep. Presently Umslopogaas awoke again, feeling pain in his thigh where the lioness had bitten him, and heard a sound of shouting. He looked up; near to him stood the lioness that had loosened him from her jaws. She was snorting with rage, and in front of her was a lad—a lad long and strong, with a grim face and a wolf's hide, black and gray, bound about his shoulders in such fashion that the upper jaw and teeth of the wolf rested on his head. He stood before the lioness, shouting, and in one hand he held a large war shield and in the other he grasped a heavy club shod with iron.

Now the lioness crouched herself to spring, growling terribly, but the lad with the club did not wait for the spring. He ran in upon her and smote her on the head with the club, yet did not kill her, for she reared herself upon her hind legs and struck at him heavily. He caught the blow upon his shield, but the shield was driven against his breast so strongly that he fell backward beneath the shield. Then the lioness sprang upon him and worried at him. Still, because of the shield, as yet she could not come to him to slay him. But Umslopogaas saw that this might not endure, for presently the shield would be torn aside and the stranger must be killed. Now, in the breast of the lioness yet stood the half of Umslopogaas' broken spear, and the blade of it was a span deep in her breast. So he rose swiftly, ran to where the lioness worried at him who lay beneath the shield and, seizing the haft of the broken spear, drove it deep into her and wrenched it around. Now she turned, roaring, and clawed at him, tearing his breast and arms. Then, as he lay, he heard a mighty howling, and behold! gray wolves and black leaped upon the lioness and rent and worried her till she fell and was torn to pieces by them. After this the senses of Umslopogaas left him again.

At length his mind came back to him, and he saw that he lay in a cave upon a bed of grass, while all about him were the skins of beasts and at his side was a pot filled with water. He drank of the water, and then he saw that his arm was wasted as with sickness, and that his breast was thick with scars scarcely skinned over.

Now while he lay and wondered the mouth of the cave was darkened, and through it came that same lad who had done battle with the lioness and been overthrown by her, bearing a dead buck upon his shoulders. He put down the buck upon the ground, and walking to where Umslopogaas lay looked upon him.

"Ou!" he said, "your eyes are open—do you, then, live, stranger?"

"I live," answered Umslopogaas, "and I am hungry."

"It is time," said the other; "since with toil I bore you here through the forest, for twelve days you have lain without sense, drinking water only. Twice I was near to killing you, that you might cease to suffer and I to be troubled, but I held my hand because of a word which came to me from one who is dead. Now eat, that your strength may return to you. Afterward we will talk."

And afterward, as they sat at night by the fire in the cave, they spoke together.

"How are you named?" asked Umslopogaas of the other.

"I am named Galazi the Wolf," he answered, "and I am of Zulu blood—aye, of the blood of Chaka, the king; for the father of Senzangacona, the father of Chaka, was my great-grandfather."

"Whence, then, came you, Galazi?"

"I came from Swaziland—from the tribe of the Halakazi, which I should rule. This is the story: Siguyana, my grandfather, was a younger brother of Senzangacona, the father of Chaka, but he quarreled with Senzangacona and became a wanderer. With certain of the people of the Umtetwa he wandered into Swaziland and sojourned with the Halakazi tribe in their great caves, and the end of it was that he slew the chief of the tribe and took his place. After he was dead my father ruled in his place, but there was a great party in the tribe that hated his rule because he was of the Zulu race, and it would have set up a chief of the old Swazi blood in his place. Still, they could not do this, for my father's hand was heavy on the people. Now I was the only son of my father by his head wife and should be chief after him, and therefore those of the Swazi party—and they were many and great—hated me also.

"So matters stood till last year in the winter, and then my father set his heart upon killing twenty of the headmen, with their wives and children, because he knew that they plotted against him. But the headmen learned what was to come and they prevailed upon a wife of my father—a woman of their own blood—to poison him. So she poisoned him in the night, and in the morning it was told me that my father lay sick and summoned me, and I went to my father. In his hut I found him, and he was writhing with pain.

"'What is it, my father?' I said. 'Who has done this evil?'

"'It is this, my son,' he gasped, 'that I am poisoned, and yonder she stands who has done the deed,' and he pointed to the woman.

"Now the girl was young and fair, and we had been friends, yet I say that I did not pause, for my heart was mad in me. I did not pause, but seizing my spear I ran at her and, though she cried for mercy, I killed her with the spear.

"'That was well done, Galazi,' said my father. 'But when I am gone look to yourself, my son, for these Swazi dogs will drive you out and rob you of your place! But if they drive you out and you yet live, swear this to me, that you will not rest till you avenge me.'

"'I swear it, my father,' I answered. 'I swear that I will stamp the men of the tribe of Halakazi flat, every one of them except those of my own blood, and bring their women to slavery and their children to bonds!'

"'Big words for a young mouth,' said my father. 'Yet you shall live to bring these things about, Galazi. This I know of you now in my hour of death; you shall be a wanderer for the few years of your life, child of Siguyana, and wandering in another land you shall die a man's death, and not such a death as yonder witch has given to me.' Then with a great groan he died.

"Now I passed out, dragging the body of the dead girl after me. In front of the hut were gathered many headmen, and I saw that their looks were sullen.

"'The chief, my father, is dead!' I cried, 'and I, Galazi, who am the chief, have slain her who murdered him!' and I rolled the body of the girl over so that they might look upon her face.

"Now, the father of the girl was among those who stood before me; he had brought her to the deed, and his heart was maddened at the sight.

"'What, my brothers,' he cried, 'shall we suffer that this young Zulu dog be chief over us? Never! The old lion is dead; now for the cub!' and he ran at me with spear aloft.

"'Never!' shouted the others, and they, too, ran toward me, shaking their spears.

"I waited; I did not hasten, for I knew well that I should not die then; I knew it because of my father's words. I waited till the man was near me; he thrust, I sprang aside and drove my spear through him, and on the daughter's body the father fell dead. Then I shouted aloud and rushed through them. None touched me; none could catch me.

"I fled from the country of the Halakazi, nor did I linger at all in the land of the Swazis, but came on swiftly into the Zulu.

"Now on the third night I came to a little kraal that stands on the farther side of the river at the foot of the mountains. In front of the kraal sat an old, old woman basking in the rays of the setting sun. She saw me and spoke to me, saying: 'Young man, you are tall and strong and swift of foot. Would you earn a famous weapon—a club that destroys all who look on it?'

"I said that I would have such a club and asked what I should do to win it.

"'You shall do this,' said the old, old woman. 'Tomorrow morning at the first light you shall go up to yonder mountain,' and she pointed to the mountain where you are now, stranger, where the Stone Witch sits forever waiting for the world to die. 'Two-thirds of the way up the mountain you will come to a path that is difficult to climb. You shall climb the path and enter a gloomy forest. It is very dark in the forest, but you must push through it till you come to an open place with a wall of rock behind it. In the wall of rock is a cave, and in the cave you will find the bones of a man. Bring down the bones in a bag and I will give you the club.'

"While she spoke thus people came out of the kraal and listened.

"'Do not heed her, young man,' they said, 'unless you are weary of life. Do not heed her, she is crazy. The mountain is haunted; it is the place of ghosts. Look at the Stone Witch, who sits upon it! Evil spirits live in the forest and no man has walked there for many years. Her son was foolish—he went to walk in the forest, saying that he cared nothing for ghosts, and the Amatongo, the ghost folk, killed him. That was many years ago, and none have dared to seek his bones. Ever she sits here and asks of the passers by that they should bring them, offering the great club for a reward, but they dare not.'

"'They lie,' said the old woman. 'There are no ghosts there. The ghosts live only in their cowardly hearts. There are but wolves. I know that the bones of my son lie in the cave, for I have seen them in a dream; but, alas! my old limbs are too weak to carry me up the mountain path and all these are cowards. There is no man among them since the Zulus slew my husband, covering him with wounds.'

"Now I listened, saying no word, but when all had done I asked to see the club which should be given to him who dared to face the Amatongo, the spirits who lived in the forest upon the Ghost mountain. Then the old woman rose, and creeping on her hands went into the hut. Presently she returned again, dragging the great club after her.

"'Look on it, stranger! Look on it! Was there ever such a club?' and Galazi held it up before the eyes of Umslopogaas.

"I looked at it," went on Galazi, "and I tell you, stranger, a great desire came into my heart to possess it.

"'How is this club named?' I asked of the old woman.

"'He is named Watcher of the Fords,' she answered, 'and he has not watched in vain. Five men have held that club in war and a hundred and seventy and three have given up their lives beneath its strokes. He who held it last slew twenty before he was slain himself; for this fortune goes with the club, that he who owns it shall die holding it, but in a great fashion. There is but one other weapon to match with it in Zululand, and that is the great ax of Jikiza, the chief of the People of the Ax, who dwells in the kraal yonder—the ancient horn hafted Imbubuzi, the Groanmaker, that brings victory. Were ax Groanmaker and club Watcher of the Ford side by side there are no thirty men in Zululand who might stand before them. I have said. Choose,' and she watched me cunningly through her horny eyes. At length she rose. 'La! la!' she said, 'the Watcher is not for this one. This one is but a child. I must seek me a man; I must seek me a man!'

"Not so fast, old wife,' I said; 'will you lend me this club to hold in my hand while I go to find the bones of your son and to snatch them from the people of the ghosts?'

"'Boy, your eyes are honest,' she said, still peering at me. 'Take the Watcher, go seek the bones. If you die, let the club be lost with you; if you fail, bring him back to me; but if you win the bones, then he is yours, and he shall bring you glory, and you shall die a great death at last, holding him aloft among the dead.'

"So on the morrow at dawn I took the club Watcher in my hand and a little dancing shield and made ready to start.

"Now, stranger, if you have strength come to the mouth of the cave and look out for the moon is bright."

So Umslopogaas rose and crept through the narrow mouth of the cave. There, above him, a great gray peak, shaped like a seated woman, towered high into the air, her chin resting upon her breast, the place where the cave was being, as it were, on the lap of the woman. Below this place the rock ran down sharply and was clothed with little bushes. Lower down yet was a forest, great and dense, that stretched to the lip of a cliff, and at the foot of the cliff, beyond the waters of the river, lay the wide plains of Zululand.

"Yonder, stranger," said Galazi, pointing, "yonder is the kraal where the aged woman dwelt. There is the cliff rising from the plain up which I must climb; there is the forest where dwell the Amatongo, the people of the ghosts; there, on the hither side of the forest, runs the path to the cave, and here is the cave itself. See this stone lying at the mouth of the cave; it turns thus, shutting up the mouth of the cave—it turns gently, though it is so large a child may move it, for it rests upon a sharp point of rock.

"Only this, the stone may not be pushed too far; for, look! if it came to here," and he pointed to a mark in the mouth of the cave, "then that man must be strong who can draw it back again, though I have done it myself, who am not a man full grown. But if it pass beyond this mark, then, see, it will roll down the neck of the cave like a pebble down the neck of a gourd, and I think that two men, one striving from within and one dragging from without, scarcely could avail to push it clear. Look, now, I close the stone, as is my custom of a night, thus"—and he grasped the rock and swung it around upon its pivot, on which it turned as a door turns. "Thus I leave it, and though, except those to whom the secret is known, none would guess that a cave was here, yet with a push of the hand it may be rolled back. But enough of the stone.

"I started from the kraal of the old woman, and the people of the kraal followed me to the brink of the river. It was in flood and few had dared to cross it.

"I bound the shield upon my shoulders with a string, and the bag that I had brought I made fast about my middle, and I held the great club in my teeth by the thong. Then I plunged into the river and swam. Twice, stranger, the current bore me under and those on the bank shouted that I was lost, but yet I rose again, and in the end won the farther shore, and I walked on till I came to the foot of the cliff. That cliff is hard to climb, yet I found a way up it and by midday I came to the forest. Here, on the edge of the forest, I rested awhile and ate a little food that I had brought with me in the bag. Then I rose and plunged into the forest. I wended on, often losing my path. But from time to time between the tops of the trees I saw the figure of the gray stone woman who sits on the top of Ghost mountain, and shaped my course toward her knees.

"Still I went on, and at length the trees grew fewer, the ground sloped upward and the light poured down from the heavens again. But, stranger, you are weary and the night wears on. Sleep now, and tomorrow I will end the tale. Say, first, how are you named?"

"I am named Umslopogaas, son of Mopo," he answered, "and my tale shall be told when yours is done. Let us sleep."

Now when Galazi heard this name he started and was troubled, but said nothing. So they laid them down to sleep and Galazi wrapped Umslopogaas with the skins of bucks.

But Galazi the Wolf was so hardy that he lay down on the bare rock and had no covering. So they slept, and without the door of the cave the wolves howled, scenting the blood of men.

CITY COUNCIL.

A Hurried Gathering of the Worthy to Discuss the Victoria-Sydney By-law.

The By-law Laid Over After Plenty of Debate---Payment of Water Rates Assured.

There was a special meeting of the city council last night. Present, the Mayor, Ald. Hunter, Baker, Hall, McKillican, Humber, Bragg, Lovell, Munn and Styles.

The minutes of the last regular meeting and special meetings were taken as read and adopted.

ACCEPTED WITH THANKS.

A communication from the mayor and council of Vancouver, inviting the mayor and aldermen of Victoria to the Dominion Day celebration was read, received and accepted with thanks.

THE RAILWAY BY-LAW.

Council went into committee on the Victoria and Sidney railway by-law and the following changes were made:

Clause 7, re exemption of taxation on the company's city property, was struck out.

Actual construction must commence Oct. 1st, 1892, and end September 1st, 1894.

Ald. Munn stated that the company had to negotiate the sale of their bonds as soon as possible after issue. Corporation and Government should agree on them, and hoped the former would do everything to facilitate good prices for the bonds. The city was amply protected.

Ald. Hunter advised that an engineer be appointed to see that the work was properly done in the interests of city and government.

Ald. Munn was of opinion that the company should not be tied down. The Chinese labor exclusion clause would make a difference of 10 or 15 per cent. It was the only line in the country on which this rule was enforced.

The Mayor said the main thing was to have the road constructed, and in operation. The city and government would have to act concertedly. The certificate should be honored when signed by the city engineer and surveyor-general.

Ald. Baker said if he were a promoter of this line he would drop it on account of the useless obstructions being put in the way. The by-law should not be killed by restrictions.

Several of the aldermen thought that the city being so heavily interested should be well protected.

The mayor feared the by-law as originally submitted would not be sanctioned by the ratepayers.

His worship said the length of the road was not known; this made a great difference. Something definite ought also to be known as to the location of the terminus in this city, and it must be subject to the approval of the city and government.

Ald. Munn suggested the outer wharf; Ald. Styles said the company could not purchase the right of way. After some discussion on this point the committee rose, reported progress and asked leave to sit again. The mayor, Ald. Hunter and Munn were ask to instruct the city barristers as to insertion of clauses in the by-law desired by the council.

ODDS AND ENDS.

The sanitary engineer, Mr. Mohun, reported receipt of $500 worth of sewage pipe from the Terra Cotta Company. Requesting instructions as to acceptance. Sewerage committee to enquire.

Hon. D. W. Higgins, on behalf of the tramway company, asking leave to excavate a tunnel at Constance street for water. Street committee and city engineer for report.

From C. Hayward, asking conveyance to him of certain lands bought by him at a non-payment of taxes sale.—Finance committee, to enquire.

NO PAY, NO WATER.

Council went into committee of the whole on the water rates collection by-law. The by-law provides for the cutting off of water supply if the rates are not paid thirty days after they are due. The enactment passed after some debate.

The council then adjourned until Wednesday night.

THE CLERICAL SIDE.

Further Views on the Dispute re the Appointing of a Bishop's Coadjutor.

A member of the Anglican church has sent a communication to this paper explaining and controverting several of the statements made by the writer who, under the pseudonym of "Mens Legis" expressed some opinions through these columns last evening on the misunderstanding at present existing between the Lord Bishop of Columbia and the Anglican laity. The principal statements made by the writer are as follows: "First, Except that the present Bishop took an oath of canonical obedience to the Archbishop of Canterbury this Diocese is absolutely independent. The question of joining with the other Canadian Dioceses to make an ecclesiastical province—for there is no ecclesiastical province for the whole of Canada now—there being several—Toronto, Quebec, etc.—was discussed in Bishop Hills' address. 'Mens Legis" entirely misapprehends this part of the question. The Bishop of Columbia is absolutely independent of the Archbishop of Canterbury in the administration of the Diocese, the oath he took being mere form.

Second, In re the assertion that the canon proposed gave the election of the coadjutor into the Bishop's hands, the following is quoted in explanation, being section 6 of the said proposed canon: "In the event of application being made by the Bishop for the appointment of a Bishop Coadjutor on the ground of age or infirmity having rendered him incapable of fully performing the duties of his office, the Synod shall decide upon the application, and in the event of its being granted, the Coadjutor shall be appointed by the same rule and under the same conditions as those laid down for the election of a Diocesan Bishop."

The writer continues: "You will notice the conditions of election would have been identical to those now under the necessity of appointing a lord bishop or a diocesan bishop; viz., by election by laity and clergy; therefore the assertion that Bishop Hill desired to have the appointment is entirely wrong, and 'Mens Legis' is misleading the public. The assertion in the TIMES (Saturday) was that the man who would be wanted by the laity probably will not be acceptable to the clergy, and vice versa; and that had the synod granted the bishop's wish to have a coadjutor with right of succession, his presence and experience would have averted the deadlock between laity and clergy now almost inevitable. But, independent of this they refused practically to help the aged bishop by withholding conditions which made the appointment of a coadjutor possible."

The writer then draws attention to the canon, a copy of which he enclosed, and says that "by studying the same it will be seen how fair it was to the laity, and was no attempt to take out of their hands their rights."

WHERE IS THE INSPECTOR?

TO THE EDITOR:—I would ask to be informed if there is any building by-law now in force? Once upon a time a certain hardware merchant of this city started to put a window in a wooden building within the fire limits and was at once checked by the city authorities. Now, however, on every side may be noticed infractions of the building by-law (if there is one). The old wooden roof of the building, corner of Government and Yates streets, has been re-shingled, and the old shack where Tebb & Yelland's canoe factory existed is being re-built. Surely it is bad enough to have old wooden buildings on business property, but to have them re-built when destroyed by fire is outrageous.

FIRE.

Brimming Over With Fun.

Notwithstanding several other strong attractions last night there was a very fine audience present to see the comedy "Jane," as played by Frohman's celebrated company. It is without doubt the finest and funniest comedy presented in Victoria in years. From the first minute to the final scene it was a continuous ripple of laughter, interspersed with many a hearty roar of unrestrained merriment. The evening's fun began with a delicious one-act morceau pour rire, "Chums," the prize comedietta of the New York Herald's competition. It is a series of ludicrous complications working up to the grand climax—explanation and apologies all round. The little piece put the audience in excellent humor for the still funnier play of "Jane." Miss Johnson Bennett in the title role simply took the house by storm. Her acting is that of a consummate mistress of her difficult art. Her appearance on the stage is most pleasing, reminding one strongly of Rosina Vokes. The "William" of Mr. R. F. Cotton was exceedingly funny; the part was, after Miss Bennett's, the strongest in the cast. Mr. Paul Arthur as "Shakelton," the embarrassed bachelor, was most entertaining and played his part with rare skill. Mr. Geo. Shaffer as "Mr. Kershaw," the trustee, gave a capital interpretation of his lines; a splendid bit of acting. Miss Maggie Fisher as "Chudwick," the elderly amorous female, threw the house into roars of laughter. Miss Katharine Gray as "Lucy Morton" had a chance to display varied talents. The play will be presented again this evening, and it can be said with complete confidence, it deserves hearty support. All who love laughter and refined fun should see "Jane."

His Fiftieth Birthday.

A very interesting gathering took place last evening at the residence and grounds of T. Haughton, Esq., of the firm of T. Haughton & Co., Manchester House, Yates street, the occasion being the jubilee of the senior partner of that firm. A large number of friends, adherents of the Emmanuel Baptist church, of which Mr. Haughton is deacon, and Calvary church, together with the whole of the employees of the firm, were present. Mr. Harper, on behalf of the employees, referred to the amicable relations existing between Mr. Haughton and themselves, the high esteem in which he was held generally, and begged his (Mr. Haughton's) acceptance of a gold-headed cane, beautifully engraved, as a slight token of their affectionate regard. Mr. Haughton suitably responded, thanking the friends for their presence, specially thanking those of his firm for their kind present and humorously invited all of them to the next birthday jubilee, 50 years hence. Rev. P. H. McEwen, as the newly settled pastor of Emmanuel church, spoke of having received a letter from Mr. Haughton whilst traveling in England a few months ago, and how he was greatly drawn to him and to the work here because of the kindly and earnest tone of the letter, and predicted that as pastor and deacon the most harmonious relations would exist between them. Mr. W. Marchant, as representing the Calvary Baptist church, expressed the affectionate regard of the Calvary people toward Mr. Haughton, glanced at his connection and help towards the church of which he was formerly deacon and wished long life, prosperity, and the best of blessings, earthly and divine, to rest upon him and his esteemed partner in life.

A sumptuous repast had been prepared by the hostess and the pleasant gathering, which was enlivened by the strains of music from a local fife and drum band, separated at a late hour.

SOME CURIOUS CLUBS.

The Gathering Points in England of Many Kindred Spirits.

From the Boston Home Journal.

In Shakespeare's time clubs were common in London, but they were little more than bacchanalian meetings, and had no more resemblance to the clubs of to-day than the speech or costume of that period has to ours. But London, both past and present, furnishes some instances of most remarkable clubs, with curious customs and peculiar objects.

The Red Haired Club of Dublin was a society which barred out all whose hirsute covering was not of the most pronounced auburn. In order that no man could gain admission by false pretenses, it was required at the initiation of each member that the applicant wash his hair and whiskers in hot soda and water. This effectually took out any "dye" that might have been used.

The Funeral Club, of Paris, was a ghastly organization. Its object was to attend in a body all public funerals, and private ones where it was allowed. Its meetings were always held in cemeteries, and members invariably dressed in sombre black with crepe sashes on their hats. The only music they had was a hand-organ, and this played nothing but the dead march in "Saul." No smile was ever seen upon the face of a member in public. All kinds of gaieties, theatres, dances and parties the members were strictly forbidden to participate in at any time; indeed, it is difficult to imagine what on earth the men composing the Funeral Club had to live for anyhow.

The Liars' Club still exists in London, and flourishes in an inn situated in one of the dingy courts of Fleet street. The initiation fee is five shillings, half of which is remitted should the new member be able to outlie any member present. The tallest stories are told in this tavern at every weekly meeting, and the best exaggerator carries off the honors of the evening. But if a man is known to lie outside the precincts of the club rooms he is liable to expulsion.

The Thirteen Club in America has not been a success, taking into consideration its fundamental principle—to combat all modern superstitions, especially that one which teaches us that the number "13" is fatal and always unlucky. The club always sit down with 13 at a table, always on Friday, the supposed unluckiest day of the week, knives are crossed, salt is spilled and everything is done to tempt ill-luck, but it does not come. On the other hand neither does the popular belief that 13 is unlucky disappear.

There was, and probably still is, in Heidelberg, in connection with the famous university there, a Beer Club, to which access could only be gained by one's tested capacity for drinking large quantities of beer. No member was eligible for membership who could not drink a gallon of beer at one sitting, and if any member, at any time after election, failed to imbibe the stipulated quantity at a meeting he was no longer considered "beer honorable," and was both fined and suspended.

Berlin has its Giants' Club, every member of which is over six feet in height; Vienna, its Lazy Club, no member of which does anything for a living, and London possesses a Baldheaded Club, where bright and shining craniums alone are seen.

A handsome complexion is one of the greatest charms a woman can possess. Pozzoni's Complexion Powder gives it.
